

(Tech) ZOMBIE apocalypse?

How about flying up to the cloud?

What if a Zombie apocalypse breaks out, what backup plan do you have to save yourself? Maybe, warp off to the clouds! The zombies do not fly, do they?

In all true sense, it is not about those undead men (from the horror flicks), but rather about the undead technology that is:

Slowing your processes

Hard to port

Inconvenient with 24x7 co-ordination

Substantially expensive

Thus, a nightmarish zombie can devour your business of a seamless growth, nevertheless, cloud technologies can be your safe getaway.

How can cloud technology be your ultimate saviour?

It is reliable:

Cloud technology runs on extensive data farms that back up your data keeping it secure from any disaster.

It is omnipresent:

No matter where you are or what time it is, cloud technology can reach to your aid anywhere at any time of the day.

It can unite you:

During apocalypse, working as a team can ensure you to stay up head against all the odds. Cloud technology is a central depository for all your data, thus helps share your details and ensuring well-coordinated teams.

It is lightweight:

Cloud technology does not burden your finances with heavy bills on installations, server rooms and other hardware.

It is Agile:

Cloud technology offers you quick installation and data compilation assisting you to get in action right from day 1.

To add more armour to it, web based software such as Sage ERP and Sage CRM services can assure higher efficiency, better planning, analysis and successful outcome to help your company survive for an eternity (immortality secret anyone). Thus, leave behind the traditional technologies before they turn their back on you and switch to the modern and smart cloud based technology and be prepared for all the ups and downs.
